INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the 2025 Shield Wall Media Directory

Yes, it is 2024 and we are publishing the 2025 Directory. Sometimes that naming protocol makes me cringe. But if that is my, or your, biggest problem today, it is a very good day.

This year we are reintroducing Product Profiles. We discontinued these a few years ago, and now we are running them in certain key issues. Product Profiles will run in our Directory and the project-focused issues of our magazines.

These profiles are a way to introduce you to our advertiser's products in a little more depth. Product profiles are about one specific product, and they include a product photo and 50 word description. If you advertise with us and would like to submit a profile, please do. You can send it to me and I will pass it along to our editors.

We are also pleased to introduce our new mascot "Max". The live version is in our office everyday usually sleeping or working the cuteness for treats. His avatar will now be appearing at different places in our marketing and magazines.

Thank you for your support in making this the largest issue we have ever done. Please do not forget to take our annual State of the Industry Survey when it comes out in November.

Please do not forget to take our annual State of the Industry Survey when it comes out in November.

This Directory is a Great Tool... Help Us Build Another: The CSI Annual!

Thank you for your participation in the Rural Builder Directory from Shield Wall media. Our mission is to assist professionals in the construction industry by providing them with relevant news, best practices, and connections. It appears that there has been a data drought in the industry for a long time, so in the last few years, we have strengthened our commitment by tapping into the various markets we work with to gather industry data and trends. Our surveys are sent to our digital subscribers and the Construction Survey Insight (CSI) article in our magazines are based on the responses we receive.

This year we debuted our first Construction Survey Industry Annual, sending it out to every subscriber of every one of our print magazines. Our initial responses have been positive. The anonymous survey for the annual asked questions about how much and what kind of business companies are doing, how it compares to the prior year, and what they expect in the year ahead. It asks about challenges the industry faces and what they see as strengths in the industry. It touches on plans for the future, as well as concerns. We invite you to delve into the CSI Annual. It is filled with tables meant to give you an industry picture as well as commentary that can be helpful as you begin to review and compare the various information conveyed by the graphs.

Please consider helping us grow this data. If it is of interest to you, participate in the survey and share it with your customers and colleagues. The more responses we receive, the more valuable the data will be – and we share it with you for Free!

In the meantime, we hope this directory will be helpful in encouraging your relationships with others in the industry.

20 YEARS IN THE FAMILY BUSINESS.

72,000 FEET OF GUTTER PER YEAR.

3 MACH II SEAMLESS GUTTER MACHINES.

Abel Cisneros, co-owner of C&S Rain Gutters, opened his gutter business in 2003 with a used NTM Mach II gutter machine and a clear vision—to deliver top-notch gutters to his community of Greeley, Colorado. Over the years, his small business has expanded to include northern Colorado and southern Wyoming, where he specializes in custom-built homes. He has since purchased three new Mach II machines and runs 72,000 feet of gutter per year.

Project: St. Peters Cathedral, Erie, PA

Scope of works: Slate Re-Roof, Standing Seam Copper Roof, and Gutters Replacement

Contractor: A.W. Farrell & Son, Inc. Erie, Pennsylvania

Copper Roof and Gutters: Armor Fab, LLC, Erie, Pennsylvania. 30-SQ of Copper Roofing. 750' feet of gutter

Project Manager: Randy Pace

Assistant Project Manager: Tony Lazarony

Slate Foremen: Sean Irwin and Gary Fish, and Journeyman Paul Gibbs from Roofer's Local 210. 230-SQ of Slate

Copper Work Foremen: Kody Pace and Chris Hogue from Sheetmetal Local 12

In 1873 ground was broken to begin the building of the St. Peters Cathedral in Erie, Pennsylvania. A slate roof was installed on the steep pitches, along with a standing seam copper roof at lower pitches, and copper gutters set-into the stone perimeter of the roof.

Prior to the re-roof $2 million in "gold leaf" was applied to the walls and ceilings inside the church. This meant the winter prior to the new roof installation the existing roof had to be protected. The re-roof began in the Spring of 2023, with the 150-year-old slate being removed first, as Sharkskin Ultra SA® was installed to protect the Cathedral.

Sharkskin Ultra SA® was chosen for the re-roof of the St.

Peters Cathedral, in Erie, Pennsylvania, for its long term 50-year warranty and High-Temp rating under the new Greenstone Slate roof and Standing Seam Copper Roof. In addition, the Cathedral is approximately a little more than a mile from Lake Erie. Lake Erie is known for its strong "lake breeze" winds. The men from A.W. Farrell & Son, Inc., have experience with Sharkskin Ultra SA® and know once installed properly, it's not going to blow off.

In addition, the walking surface of the Sharkskin Ultra SA® provided the men setting the roof scaffolding, and roof jacks with a safe walking surface. The scaffolding set directly on top of the Sharkskin Ultra SA® was leak-free during the roof installation. Sharkskin Ultra SA provided leak-free protection on the entire project from start to finish, as well as providing 12-Month UV Protection.

With the top of the Cathedral steeple at 300' and the distance to the top of the gutters at 80'-100', it was important that the project ran smoothly. Every pallet of slate had to be "ring tested," which means a hammer is used to test the slate, to make sure there are no cracks. The slate will ping in just the right way to confirm, soundness. In addition, slate was pulled from three separate pallets onto one, to maintain even color dispersion across the roof plane, to eliminate blotches of lighter and darker slates.

The standing seam copper roof panels and copper gutters were fabricated locally by Armor Fab, LLC, owned by Robert Pace. The copper gutters were made in 20' lengths and craned up to the roof. The on-site crane was invaluable for the installation of both the Copper Sheetmetal work and slate roof installation.

Another beautiful roof installation from the men at A.W. Farrell & Son, Inc.

Welcome to the 2025 Shield Wall Media Directory

Shield Wall Media's magazines and shows serve more than 100,000 builders and contractors with advice and product announcements. Once a year, we print this Directory to serve our goal of bringing together those professionals with the construction industry's leading suppliers. Keep this supplier resource handy all year and remember to tell your vendors "I saw your company in the 2025 Shield Wall Media Directory."
